With Primary Win, McClintock & McAuliffe Are Ready to Run

for Hunterdon County Freeholder in November

Flemington, NJ - Fresh off a primary win in the race for the Democratic nomination for Hunterdon County Freeholder, Lynne McClintock and Cullen McAuliffe both look forward to sharing their vision of an ethical and responsive county government with voters on the road to Election Day in November.

Expanding on their campaign theme of bringing an approach of personal dedication to everyone in the county, regardless of political party, Lynne McClintock noted, "We are truly humbled by the support we received in the primary process, and now we are looking forward to highlighting the common beliefs that we all share as Hunterdon County citizens. Our campaign will show that with a fresh perspective and an open mind, county government can improve our daily lives without raising taxes."

McClintock and McAuliffe have been traveling the county and communicating the message that with all the economic troubles in Washington and Trenton, they will be dedicated to sticking up for Hunterdon County in the face of changing tax laws, unfunded mandates, and state and federal politicians who don't understand Hunterdon County's needs.

"Hunterdon County needs advocates ready to demand that we get our fair share of support from Washington and Trenton, and Lynne and I are certainly ready and able to take on that task for everyone throughout the county," said Cullen McAuliffe. "People who live in Hunterdon County have a unique perspective on what they want from government. We understand that perspective, and we will make sure we consistently listen to voters and conduct ourselves ethically, and with full transparency, if we are privileged enough to earn their vote in November," he added.

In the coming months, McClintock and McAuliffe will talk to voters directly, with an open mind, to hear their thoughts on the best way for the county to meet all people at their point of need. "It will be fun. There's nothing better than seeing our beautiful county change from summer to fall," said McClintock. "And meeting new people along the way," McAuliffe added.

About the candidates:

Lynne McClintock is an educator and communications specialist who has devoted her life to the public good through her tireless work with students and vulnerable populations throughout Hunterdon County. Her extensive insights into communicating with others will ensure you get the information you need, and the transparency you deserve, from county government. Lynne is an Advisory Board Member with the Hunterdon Community Recovery Center and serves as a Recovery Coach volunteer with City of Angels. Lynne is also a member of Safe Communities Coalition of Hunterdon and Somerset and is an Advocacy Leader with the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence. She is a past president of the Union Township Education Association.

Cullen McAuliffe's years of experience in the public sector as an advocate helping New Jerseyans, and as an executive in the competitive non-profit world, have taught him the value of a dollar and the power of government to help protect people's freedom and happiness. He will make sure your voice is heard and your trust well placed. Cullen is a past president of the Political Science Chapter of the College of New Jersey Alumni Association, past member of the Lambertville City Zoning Board of Adjustment, and a current member of the Delaware Township Zoning Board of Adjustment.
